Lineage—This family was one of great respectability and opulence in the co. Kerry, possessing property in the neighbourhood of Dingle, the Samphires, Ballybunion, &c., long before the English settlers, under the "Plantation Scheme," established themselves in the locality. The first of whom there is any record was

JOHN FULLER, who is mentioned in the "Desmond Survey," A.D. 1583, as possessed of the townland of Bowlerstown (Ballybowlter) and "certain lands in Ballybeg." He mortgaged Bowlerstown to Stephen Rice 1610. According to an Inquisition taken at Killarney, he and Maurice Fuller (probably his son) were seized in fee of the townlands of Ballyristin or Ballyristeenig and Ballytoibn or Ballytoebnig, and conveyed them in 1635, to Teige Moriarty. That John Fuller was a man of mark at this period appears by an Inquisition taken at Killarney, 18 Aug. 1635 (Inq. No. 59 CHARLES I., co. Kerry, Chancery, calendered by the Record Commissioners 1818), which found that he held his lands "de M^o Rege in capite p. service militar," i.e., by Knight's service. He was pardoned, 1st of James I., being then of Rahinane, Barbara Fuller, who m. Richard Alkins, of Firville, was of the same family.

HERBERT, late OF MUCKRUSS.

HENRY ARTHUR
EDWARD KEANE
HERBERT, J.P. CO.
Kerry, heir male of the family of HER-
BERT of Muckruss, b.

Lineage.—Since the meeting of the elder branch of the family of CURVE, by the marriage of the heiress of the last Herbert, Earl of Powis, with the son of the celebrated General Lord Clive, the chieftainship of the name seems indubitably to rest with HERBERT of Muckruss, in co. Kerry, descended from Thomas Herbert, of Kilcuagh, who went to Ireland under the care and patronage of his relative Lord Herbert, of Cherbury and Castle Island, A.D. 1656; which Thomas was the son of Mathew, the son of Sir John, the son of Sir William, the son of Sir Mathew of Colebrook, the lineal descendant from the eldest son of Sir Richard Herbert, of Colebrook, only brother of the Earl of Pembroke of the first creation. These brothers (as may be read in the pages of Speed and Hollinshed) suffered as Yorkists in the Wars of the Roses. The heir-general of the Earl of Pembroke married into the family of Somerset, Earl and Marquess of Worcester, and Duke of Beaufort. From Sir Richard descended in the younger branches the Lords Herbert of Cherbury, afterwards Earls of Powis, and Herbert, Earl of Torrington, both extinct in the male line, while from a senior, but never ennobled branch, the family of Muckruss and Kilcuagh now remains the existing and legitimate male representative of the famous name of Herbert.

Lineage.—The O'Laors, or Lalors, are of Milesian origin. At an early period they migrated, with the O'Mores, from Ulster to the extensive district of Leix, in the Queen's Co., of which county the O'Laors became powerful princes, and, under them, the O'Laors were influential chieftains, possessing considerable landed property, between Stradbally and Maryborough. Their principal seat was at Disert, near the rock of Dunamase. Thence a branch sprung which settled in the co. of Tipperary.

DIONYSIUS LALOR, of Ballymoney, was a member of this family. His name was signed to the new form of oath and declaration of the Confederate Catholics of Ireland, dated 10 Jan. 1646, o.s., amongst the signatures of several other personages, who are styled by historians "veluti comites in Domo Communium."

Lineage.—MACCARTY, of Carrignavar is the chief of his name, and representative of the oldest existing branch of the once sovereign House of McCarty. The first who bore the appellation of McCARTY, or son of CATAGH, was the grandfather of DIARMOD McCARTY MORE, whom the English found in possession of Cork, and who swore fealty, gave hostages, and subjected his kingdom to HENRY II. Diarmod was slain by Theobald Butler, founder of the House of Ormonde, in 1186. His successors were DONALD, CORMAC FIONN, DONALD ROE, DONALD OGE, and CORMAC, all of whom were distinguished as McCARTY MORE (or GREAT), an adjunct continued in this senior branch until 1556, when DONALD McCARTY MORE, the 7th in descent from the eldest son of the last mentioned Cormac, was created Earl of CLANCARE, in Kerry, on resigning his estates to Queen ELIZABETH, from whom he again received the investiture of them, "to hold of the Crown of England in the English manner." This stock of the McCarty More is extinct for more than a century; but the above Cormac More had a 2nd son, DERMOD, 1st Chief of Muskerry, and founder of that potent house, who was killed by the O Mahonys, 1367. From him sprung in succession, as Chiefs of Muskerry, TEIGE-CORMAC, d. 1374; TEIGE, 1448; CORMAC LAIDHIR (the Stout), 1494; CORMAC OGE LAIDHIR, who defeated the Earl of Desmond at the battle of Mone Abbey 1521, and d. 1536; TEIGE, d. 1565; DERMOD, d. 1570. Irish Division, R.A., b. 29 Dec. 1862; m. 10 Oct. 1894, Caroline Mary, dau. of John Whyte, of Loughbrickland, J.P. and D.L. (see that family), and by her has issue,

5. Basil, b. 19 Feb. 1908; d. 27 March, 1908.
1. Moira Madeleine, b. 11 March, 1910.

Lineage.—The MAC DERMOTS, the O'CONORS, and other powerful families derived a common origin from Murryach, surnamed Mullathan, who reigned over Connaught in the 7th century. The Mac DERMOTS were possessed of a large territory known as "Mac Dermot's Country," including a considerable portion of the cos. of Roscommon and Sligo, and some districts in Mayo, until deprived of the greater part of their patrimony by the confiscations which followed the Cromwellian and Williamite wars.

MAOLRUNA MOR, brother of Connor, King of Connaught, described in the ancient annals as "Prince of Moylurg," was the prepositus of the race as distinguished from the O'Connor or elder branch descended from the above-mentioned Conor. His (Maolruna's) son led the sept at the battle of Clontarf in 1014.

DERMOT, or DIARMAD (dia, god; armad, of arms), was the lineal descendant of Maolruna in the sixth generation. He d. in 1165, distinguished alike for valour and wisdom, and was s. by his son, CONOR MAC DERMOT, or MACDIARMAID, son of Dermot, with whom the surname of Mac Dermot thus originated. He was s. by his son,

TOMALTACH NA CARRIGE, or TIMOTHY OF THE ROCK, so called from the fortress he built in 1204 on the island in Lough Key, near his chief mansion house, called from that fortress, Port-na-Carrige. The direct filiations between him and Bryan Mac Dermot next mentioned are Cormac, Conor, Gilla-Christ (Jamulus Christi), Malrony, Tomoltach, Conor, Hugh, Roderick, Teig, Roderick, who d. in 1540, and was s. by his son,

BRYAN MAC DERMOT, Chief and Prince of Moylurg, m. Sarah, dau. of O'Connor Sligo, and niece of O'Donel, Prince of Tyrconnel, and was father of

BRYAN MAC DERMOT, the younger, of Carrige Mac Dermot, the family seat, now Rockingham, in the possession of the King-Hamans. Bryan being under age at the time of his father's death, the family patrimony was put in wardship, and in the Patent Rolls of the 3rd year of the reign of JAMES I. he is described in connection with this wardship as chief of his name. In the 13th year of the same reign a grant by patent was made him of the lordships, manors, and advowsons, comprising Rockingham, in the Barony of Boyle, and large territories in the cos. of Roscommon and Sligo. This patent, richly illuminated, covers sixteen skins of parchment, and is in the possession of the present Mac Dermot of Coolavin, together with the articles entered into upon the marriage of the same Bryan with Margaret Burke, of Clanrickarde. He had issue by her, two sons, Terence and Charles. Terence, who d. unm., by indentured deed, dated 1640, assigned the family patrimony, including 389 quarters, to his brother,

* The family title was originally Prince of Moylurg, Tirolle, Airteach, and Clancuain, as may be learned from the books of LECAN, BALLYMOTTE, and KILONAN, and the annals of Lough Key, the writings of Doctor O'CONOR, BURKE'S Hibernia Dominicana, &c. Driven from his ancient patrimony during the Cromwellian wars, the then chief of the race removed to Coolavin, on the shores of Lough Gara. This title has since been territorially connected with the portion of the family possessions which escaped confiscation. It is one of the few Irish titles still surviving, and has been distinctively borne by the chief of the name for a period extending over eight centuries.

CHARLES MAC DERMOT, of Port-na-Carrige, styled Cathal Roe, who became Chief and Prince of Moylurg, and m. Eleanor, youngest dau. of O'Mulloy, of Ughterera, co. Roscommon. During the Cromwellian wars this Charles was an active adherent of the Stuart cause, which led to the forfeiture of the chief part of his patrimony. Driven from his fortress of The Rock, he removed to Coolavin, on the shores of Lough Gara. In 1689, his eldest son, Hugh, garrisoned Sligo at his own expense in the interests of JAMES II., and in Sept. 1690, he was again restored to the family inheritance. The order under which he was restored to possession is dated Sept. 1690; it bears the signature of Theobald, Viscount Dillon, as Lord-Lieut. of the co. of Roscommon, and it directs possession to be given him, Charles, of the Castle of Carrige Mac Dermot, the Castle and Stronghold of Conbo, and other lands which are therein described as his "Ancient Inheritance." This document is in the possession of The Mac Dermot of Coolavin. After the battle of Aughrim, where his son, Hugh, fought, and was taken prisoner, he was again driven from Roscommon. He was s. by his eldest son,

HUGH MAC DERMOT, of Coolavin, m. Elizabeth Kelly, of the family of Aughrim, and had a son and successor,
